

Achievement Motivation

Achievement motivation is an internal asset. Learners who display a commitment to learning are motivated to doing well in school. Consider these strategies while your Learner accesses curriculum remotely:

Foster Growth Mindset

Praise your Remote Learner for their efforts. Create an environment where trying new things is encouraged.

Try: "I noticed you are working so hard on _____. I'm impressed with your commitment."

Establish High Expectations

Articulate your Learner's abilities to meet your expectations and support your Learner through any struggle.

Try: "I know this might be challenging for you, but I know you can do it."

Set Attainable Goals

Establishing daily goals helps Learners recognize achievements and growth.

Try: Posting daily goals for academic and personal growth. Celebrate each accomplished goal!

Model

Be an inspiration to your Learner by modeling Achievement Motivation.

Try: Set your own goals with your Learner and share your challenges and triumphs.

Check In - Evaluate Outcomes

Not every goal is achieved on the first try, discussing what happened and how we can realign our efforts to meet our goals is empowering.

Try: "I can tell you've worked hard towards this goal. Let's re-strategize and figure out a way to help you reach your goal. What do you think helped you reach your goal? How can I help?"
